THE HOUSE OF IDEAS

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

“LAST CALL”

March 13 – May 15, 2013
Burbank • Hollywood • Los Feliz • Worldwide

An Alternate-History Hollywood Saga

PROLOGUE: SEVENTEEN MINUTES AND FORTY SECONDS

INT. DONOHUE STUDIOS - SCREENING ROOM ONE - BURBANK - NIGHT

SUPER: WEDNESDAY, MARCH 13, 2013 - 10:52 P.M. PDT - SIX WEEKS BEFORE THE PREMIERE

A forty-seat screening room on the Donohue lot. Red velvet seats, an old-fashioned curtain, framed one-sheets on the walls going back to 1937. On the screen, the end credits of IRON MAN 3 roll past in silence.

Four people are in the room. In the front row, KEVIN FEIGE (39), baseball cap, notepad covered in arrows. Beside him, SHANE BLACK (51), the director, arms folded, braced for a fight. One row back, NATASHA BULLOCK (51), CEO of Donohue Entertainment, in a cream suit, reading glasses on, a stopwatch in her hand.

In the very back row, half in shadow, sits VICTOR DONOHUE (76). He hasn't said a word in two hours and eleven minutes.

The house lights come up. Natasha clicks the stopwatch and looks at it.

NATASHA
Seventeen minutes and forty seconds.

FEIGE Of...?

NATASHA
Armor. I timed it. My son is in an Iron Man suit for seventeen minutes and forty seconds of a hundred-and-thirty-one-minute Iron Man movie.

(taking her glasses off)
Hasbro has eleven armors in the toy line, Kevin. Eleven. Three of them appear on screen for less time than the Donohue logo.

SHANE BLACK
That's the movie. It's DEMON IN A BOTTLE. The man loses everything. The house, the suits, the drink. The suit is the bottle.

NATASHA
The suit is the BUSINESS.

The door at the side of the room opens. MARC-ANTHONY BULLOCK (31) leans in, still in a gray hoodie from the ADR stage across the lot, a coffee in each hand.

MARC-ANTHONY
I heard "the suit is the business" from the hallway, so I'm assuming I'm getting yelled at.

NATASHA
Sit down.

MARC-ANTHONY
(handing Shane one coffee, keeping one)
I'd rather stand. I'm told it's better for my back. And for running.

He comes down the aisle. Natasha holds up the stopwatch.

NATASHA
The motel bathroom. Four minutes and nine seconds. One take. No music. No suit. No jokes. You sit on the floor of a bathroom in Tennessee and stare at a bottle of bourbon.

MARC-ANTHONY
Yeah.

NATASHA
Feige's notes say test audiences went silent for that scene.

MARC-ANTHONY
Yeah.

NATASHA
Silent is not a number I can put in front of a board.

Marc-Anthony sets his coffee down on the armrest. For once, he doesn't joke.

MARC-ANTHONY
Mom. When I was nineteen, I did an episode of EVEN STEVENS where my character's dad drank. Trey Hollis. The Donohue Channel cut his storyline to eleven minutes because the sponsors didn't want it next to the cereal commercials. You were the one who signed off on the cut.

Natasha's jaw tightens. She remembers.

MARC-ANTHONY (CONT'D)
I got four hundred letters about those eleven minutes. Kids. Grown-ups. One from a guy in Ohio who said he poured his bottle out during the commercial break. That bathroom scene is for him.

(beat)
If you put me back in the armor for that scene, I'll do it. You own the company. But I'll know. And so will you.

Silence. Natasha looks at Feige. Feige looks at Shane. Shane looks at the floor.

From the back row, a voice like gravel wrapped in velvet.

VICTOR
Tasha.

Everyone turns. Victor hasn't moved. His cane rests across his knees.

VICTOR (CONT'D)
In 1937 my father put a girl and seven little men on that screen for eighty-three minutes. The bankers said nobody would sit still that long for a cartoon. He didn't cut a frame.

(beat)
Leave the boy's movie alone.

Natasha holds her father's gaze for a long moment. Then she stands, smooths her jacket, and puts the stopwatch in her pocket.

NATASHA
Hasbro gets a Mark XLII with a detachable faceplate and a "Last Call" boxed set of the old armors. Feige, you're on the phone with Rhode Island tomorrow at nine.

FEIGE
(scribbling)
Nine. Rhode Island. Got it.

NATASHA
(to Marc-Anthony, at the door, not turning around)
The letters. The four hundred. Do you still have them?

MARC-ANTHONY
Every one.

She nods once and leaves. The door hisses shut. Shane Black exhales like he's been underwater for a month.

SHANE BLACK
Your family is terrifying.

MARC-ANTHONY
(picking his coffee back up, grinning)
You should see Thanksgiving.

CUT TO:

DEADLINE.COM - TUESDAY, APRIL 16, 2013, 12:01 AM PT

'IRON MAN 3' REVIEWS: CRITICS HAIL "THE BRAVEST MOVIE MARVEL HAS MADE"; TRACKING POINTS TO $165M-$180M DOMESTIC BOW

The review embargo on Shane Black's IRON MAN 3 lifted at midnight and the verdict is in: early reviews are some of the strongest Marvel Studios has ever received. Several critics singled out a single-take motel scene in which Tony Stark, out of the armor, confronts a bottle of bourbon. The film opens in 42 international markets starting Wednesday, April 24 and in North America on Friday, May 3. Donohue and Paramount, which retains a profit share, are not commenting on tracking.

VARIETY - REVIEW - TUESDAY, APRIL 16, 2013

'IRON MAN 3': THE MAN, NOT THE MACHINE

"The most daring choice in a blockbuster this decade is also the simplest: take away the armor. Marc-Anthony Bullock spends most of IRON MAN 3 as a bruised, shaking, brilliant man in a borrowed jacket, and he has never been better. Ben Kingsley's Mandarin is the real, ring-wielding monarch fans have waited fifty years to see, and he is genuinely frightening. But the film belongs to a four-minute shot on a bathroom floor in Tennessee. You will not hear a single person in your theater eat popcorn."

THE HOLLYWOOD REPORTER - REVIEW - TUESDAY, APRIL 16, 2013

'IRON MAN 3': BULLOCK GIVES THE PERFORMANCE OF HIS CAREER IN A FILM THAT DARES TO GROUND ITS HERO

"Black adapts Warren Ellis's EXTREMIS and the 1979 DEMON IN A BOTTLE storyline with startling fidelity. Fans worried about a lack of armored action should know that what IS here, including a practical, real-ocean sequence off the Malibu coast, is ferocious. Everyone else should know that the film's last ten minutes will leave audiences arguing for years."

ROTTENTOMATOES.COM - IRON MAN 3 (2013)

TOMATOMETER: 94% (178 reviews) - Critics Consensus: "Stripped of its armor and most of its swagger, IRON MAN 3 finds the bravest version of Tony Stark yet, anchored by a career-best Marc-Anthony Bullock and a terrifying, comic-perfect Mandarin."

SUPERHEROHYPE.COM - THREAD: "IM3 REVIEWS ARE IN - 'BARELY IN THE SUIT'?!" (Page 1 of 212)

ShellHead1963 (Apr 16, 12:14 AM)
"Barely in the armor." Seventeen minutes, says one review. SEVENTEEN. This is the third Iron Man movie. The man's name is IRON Man.

Gamma_Gamma_Hey (Apr 16, 12:20 AM)
Gary. Respectfully. You said this exact thing about Thor being a woman. You said it about the Hulk walking away. You said it about Ant-Man. Your apology count is at 214.

ShellHead1963 (Apr 16, 12:22 AM)
And I will gladly write 215 if they earn it. But "Demon in a Bottle" has Tony in the armor! He's fighting Whiplash and Blizzard and Melter! He's drunk IN the armor! That's the whole point!

priya_shah_phd (Apr 16, 12:31 AM)
Gary, no. Read issue 128 again. The last issue. Tony spends it in his room, alone, with Bethany Cabe. No villain. No fight. He just doesn't drink. It's the most famous Iron Man comic ever and he's out of the suit for the part that matters.

ShellHead1963 (Apr 16, 12:40 AM)
...I'm pre-writing 215.

TommyTwoGuns (Apr 16, 12:44 AM)
"the film's last ten minutes will leave audiences arguing for years" WHAT DOES THAT MEAN. WHAT HAPPENS IN THE LAST TEN MINUTES

DarnellDoesComics (Apr 16, 12:51 AM)
Tommy, the last time a trade said "arguing for years" it was Mistress Death. Brace yourself.

PART ONE: THE PREMIERE

EXT. EL CAPITAN THEATRE - HOLLYWOOD BOULEVARD - EVENING

SUPER: WEDNESDAY, APRIL 24, 2013 - 5:30 P.M. PDT - WORLD PREMIERE OF "IRON MAN 3"

Hollywood Boulevard is closed from Highland to Orange. The El Capitan, Donohue's flagship theater since 1991, is wrapped in a forty-foot banner: Tony Stark in a torn black jacket, no armor, standing in front of the burning ruins of his Malibu home. Above his head, the Mark XLII armor in pieces, falling.

The red carpet stretches the length of the block. Photographers ten deep. Fans in cosplay pressed against the barricades: Iron Men, a dozen Mandarins with homemade glowing rings, and a growing number of fans dressed simply in black jackets and jeans, holding cardboard arc reactors to their chests.

A homemade sign held high by a teenager: "TONY STARK DOESN'T NEED A SUIT (BUT I'D LIKE ONE)."

EXT. EL CAPITAN THEATRE - RED CARPET - CONTINUOUS

SUPER: 5:41 P.M. PDT

A black Escalade pulls up. MARC-ANTHONY (31) steps out in a midnight-blue tuxedo, then turns and offers his hand. ESTHER SMILLEY (30) steps out in red silk, the engagement ring catching every flash on the boulevard. Eleven months after the twins, she looks like a goddess and she knows it.

The crowd SCREAMS. Half of them: "TONY! TONY!" The other half: "THOR! THOR! THOR!"

An ENTERTAINMENT TONIGHT CORRESPONDENT (30s) gets to them first, microphone out.

ET CORRESPONDENT
Marc-Anthony! The reviews are incredible, but everyone's talking about how little time you spend in the suit. Is IRON MAN 3 even an Iron Man movie?

MARC-ANTHONY
(completely serious)
No. It's a cooking show. A hundred and thirty-one minutes. Tony learns to make a soufflé. The Mandarin is a very harsh judge. The armor's in it for, like, one sauté scene.

ESTHER
(deadpan, into the mic)
Don't print that. He's been doing this for seven years. The soufflé falls in the third act.

ET CORRESPONDENT
(laughing)
Esther, the ring! Have you two set a date?

ESTHER
We have.

ET CORRESPONDENT
And?

ESTHER
(smiling sweetly)
And my father is the only man in America who can keep a secret from Hollywood. So we told him first.

The correspondent nearly drops the mic. Marc-Anthony guides Esther down the carpet, both of them laughing.

MARC-ANTHONY
(low, to Esther)
Did we tell your father?

ESTHER
(low)
No. But now every reporter in town is going to call him. And he's going to love it.

CUT TO:

INT. MARC-ANTHONY AND ESTHER'S HOUSE - LIVING ROOM - LOS FELIZ - CONTINUOUS

SUPER: 5:48 P.M. PDT

A living room turned toddler fortress. Foam mats, gates, a toy kitchen. On the big TV, E! is airing the red carpet live.

On the floor, in a cardigan, sits DESMOND SMILLEY (55), a man who once refused to sit on anything that wasn't leather. EMMA BULLOCK (11 months) is chewing contentedly on his reading glasses. VICTORIA BULLOCK (11 months) is pulling herself up on the edge of the coffee table, wobbling.

CELESTE SMILLEY (53) comes in from the kitchen with two bottles of formula. She stops and stares at the TV.

CELESTE
Desmond. Your daughter just told E! you're keeping the wedding date.

DESMOND
(not looking up from Emma)
I heard.

CELESTE
Your phone is going to ring all night.

DESMOND
It's already on silent. Forty-one missed calls. One of them is from Jet magazine.

He takes his glasses back from Emma, wipes them on his cardigan, and puts them back on.

DESMOND (CONT'D)
(a small, unwilling smile)
Thirty years in this town, and finally everybody wants to know what I know.

On the TV, the camera finds Marc-Anthony, pointing at the cardboard arc reactors in the crowd, giving a fan a fist bump. Victoria sees him. She lets go of the coffee table.

She takes one step. Then another. Then a third, straight toward the television.

VICTORIA
Da!

Celeste gasps. Desmond freezes.

CELESTE
She's walking. Desmond, she's WALKING.

Desmond is already fumbling his phone out of his pocket, switching it to the camera, holding it up with shaking hands. Victoria takes a fourth step, a fifth, and falls on her diapered bottom right in front of the screen, delighted with herself, slapping the glass where her father's face is.

VICTORIA
Da! Da!

Desmond lowers the phone. His eyes are wet.

DESMOND
(quietly)
Of course. Of course her first steps are toward a Donohue.

CELESTE
(gently)
Her first steps are toward her daddy.

A long beat. Desmond looks at the footage on his phone.

DESMOND
Send it to Esther. No. Wait.

(he types something himself, slowly, one finger)
I'll send it.

CUT TO:

EXT. EL CAPITAN THEATRE - RED CARPET - CONTINUOUS

SUPER: 5:52 P.M. PDT

Esther's clutch buzzes. She checks her phone and stops dead on the carpet. Marc-Anthony turns, alarmed.

MARC-ANTHONY
What? What happened? Are the girls...

She shows him the screen. A text from "DADDY": a nine-second video. Victoria, walking. The text below it reads: "She walked to the TV when your fiancé came on. Five steps. I counted. - D.S."

Marc-Anthony watches it twice. His hand goes to his mouth. Esther is laughing and crying at the same time. Forty feet of photographers capture it without knowing what they're seeing.

MARC-ANTHONY
(hoarse)
Your dad signed a text "D.S."

ESTHER
My dad signed a text "D.S." to YOU. He sent it to your phone too. Look.

He looks. It's there. Same video. Same words. Sent to MARC-ANTHONY BULLOCK.

MARC-ANTHONY
(staring at the screen)
He has my number.

ESTHER
He's always had your number, baby. He just never used it.

CUT TO:

EXT. EL CAPITAN THEATRE - RED CARPET - LATER

SUPER: 6:10 P.M. PDT

A blur of arrivals. TAYIA BOYD (31), Pepper Potts, in emerald green, giving a VARIETY reporter the quote of the night.

TAYIA
Pepper has watched this man fall apart three movies in a row. In this one, she stops trying to catch him. She waits for him to stand up. That's the most romantic thing she's ever done.

DON CHEADLE (48) signs a War Machine helmet for a boy in a wheelchair. JON FAVREAU (46) arrives in a Happy Hogan driver's cap, shaking hands up and down the barricade. BEN KINGSLEY (69) moves down the carpet with the calm of a king, wearing ten rings on his fingers. They're not props, just his own jewelry, chosen for the occasion. A cheer goes up every time a ring catches the light.

REBECCA HALL (30), who plays Maya Hansen, the scientist behind Extremis, poses with GUY PEARCE (45), Aldrich Killian, and JAMES BADGE DALE (34), whose Mallen fans have already called "the scariest Marvel henchman ever" off the trailer alone.

Then a cluster of Avengers in the middle of the carpet. TYRESE AVERY (31) and TYLER CHAPMAN (31) arrive together, both bulked up and short-haired. They're three weeks into shooting THE WINTER SOLDIER in Los Angeles and are only out tonight on a single night off.

MTV NEWS REPORTER
Tyrese! Tyler! Captain America and Bucky at an Iron Man premiere, are you here to spy?

TYRESE
We're here because Tony Stark paid for half my ticket. The other half is coming out of Bucky's salary.

TYLER
(hand on his heart)
Bucky doesn't have a salary. Bucky's been on ice. Literally.

Behind them, AMOND BAKER (31) and HARMONY DIVINE (30) step out of the same car. A beat. They separate and walk the carpet three feet apart, very carefully not touching, like two people who have rehearsed exactly this in the car.

A PHOTOGRAPHER on the riser lowers his camera and squints.

PHOTOGRAPHER
Amond! Harmony! One together!

They step closer for the photo. Harmony reaches over and straightens Amond's bow tie. It's a tiny, automatic gesture, the kind people only make after months of making it. Amond looks at her like nobody else on Hollywood Boulevard exists.

Two hundred shutters fire at once.

HARMONY
(through her smile, not moving her lips)
You were staring.

AMOND
(through his)
You fixed my tie.

HARMONY
Your tie was crooked.

AMOND
My tie is always crooked. You never fix it in public.

Harmony realizes what she's done. She laughs and covers her face with her hand, and the photographers get that too.

CUT TO:

EXT. EL CAPITAN THEATRE - RED CARPET - THE END OF THE LINE - LATER

SUPER: 6:31 P.M. PDT

At the very end of the carpet, a man nobody expected. DAVID TIPTON (32), Hank Pym, in a plain black suit, signing autographs. A reporter from SUPERHEROHYPE.COM, a press badge around her neck, spots him.

SHH REPORTER
David! Ant-Man at an Iron Man premiere. Is Hank Pym in IRON MAN 3?

DAVID
(no hesitation, very innocent)
I'm here for the free popcorn.

SHH REPORTER
That's the most suspicious answer I've ever heard.

DAVID
The popcorn at the El Capitan is very good. They butter it in layers. Write that down.

She writes it down. Behind them, his on-screen wife, ELXA BULLOCK (32), Janet van Dyne and Marc-Anthony's big sister, arrives and slips her arm through his.

ELXA
(to the reporter, sunny)
He's here to support my brother. So am I. That's all.

SHH REPORTER
Elxa, is Janet in IRON MAN 3?

ELXA
(big smile)
I'm here for the popcorn too.

CUT TO:

INT. EL CAPITAN THEATRE - STAGE - NIGHT

SUPER: 7:04 P.M. PDT

The theater is full: 1,000 seats. Cast, crew, stunt team, executives, a block of fans who won seats in a radio contest. In the third row, the Donohue family: VICTOR (76) and JOAN (75), NATASHA (51) and ROBERT BULLOCK (54), and GRACE BULLOCK (19) beside ELIJAH BLACKMAN (19), Marvel's future Maximoff twins.

Kevin Feige walks onstage to cheers. STAN LEE (90), in his tinted glasses and a sport coat, follows him out to a standing ovation.

STAN LEE
Thank you! Thank you! In 1963 I gave Tony Stark a bad heart and a suit of armor. In 1979, David Michelinie, Bob Layton and John Romita Jr. had the courage to give him a bottle, and to show what it was doing to him. Tonight you'll see it on the big screen. Excelsior!

FEIGE
Nobody gets nerfed. And nobody gets a pass, either. Not even Tony. Enjoy IRON MAN 3.

The lights go down.

CUT TO:

INT. EL CAPITAN THEATRE - AUDITORIUM - THE FILM - NIGHT

SUPER: 7:12 P.M. PDT

A montage of the screening, intercut with the audience.

ON SCREEN: New Year's Eve, a United Nations gala in New York. Tony Stark in the Mark XLII armor, faceplate up, slurring a toast with a champagne flute in his gauntlet. His repulsor fires on its own, killing the ambassador of a small nation in front of three hundred guests. The armor has been hijacked, but Tony is too drunk to prove it.

IN THE AUDIENCE: a stunned, total silence. Feige, in the aisle seat, watches the audience instead of the screen.

ON SCREEN: The Mandarin's broadcast. Ben Kingsley on a stone throne in a fortress in the Valley of Spirits in China. Ten rings, each a different color. He raises one fist and an entire Stark Industries weapons depot in the desert disintegrates on a live feed.

BEN KINGSLEY (ON SCREEN, AS THE MANDARIN)
You build armor, Mr. Stark, because you are afraid of what you are without it. I am going to show the world the answer.

ON SCREEN: The attack on the Malibu mansion. Three helicopter gunships tear the real house apart on the real cliff. Tony in the half-assembled Mark XLII, dragged under the Pacific. The armor cracks. The sea pours in. Tony tears himself out of the suit and surfaces, alone, in the dark water, with nothing.

IN THE AUDIENCE: a gasp. Somewhere, a stunt coordinator elbows the man next to him: that's really Marc-Anthony in that water.

ON SCREEN: The second act. Tony, in a borrowed leather jacket, hitchhiking through Texas, sleeping in a gas-station bathroom, tracking the stolen Extremis formula to Futurepharm in Austin. Maya Hansen, haunted and furious. Aldrich Killian, dead by his own hand in the opening minutes of the second act, just as he is in Warren Ellis's comic. And Mallen, the formula in his blood, burning a Texas highway patrol car with his breath.

ON SCREEN: The fight that the trailer never showed. Tony, in the dented, hand-cranked Mark I armor salvaged from a museum, is torn apart by Mallen on a stretch of highway in a single brutal minute. Mallen punches through the chest plate. Tony crawls into a ditch, broken.

IN THE AUDIENCE: Tayia grips Marc-Anthony's arm. She's seen the movie twice. It doesn't matter.

CUT TO:

INT. EL CAPITAN THEATRE - AUDITORIUM - THE BATHROOM SCENE - CONTINUOUS

SUPER: 8:16 P.M. PDT

ON SCREEN: A motel bathroom in Rose County, Tennessee. Flickering fluorescent light. Tony on the floor, his back against the tub, ribs taped, face swollen.

On the edge of the sink, a full bottle of bourbon. Beside it, on a motel towel, a syringe of Extremis that Maya has given him. The thing that will save his life, or end it.

The camera doesn't cut. It doesn't move. For four minutes and nine seconds, there is only Tony.

MARC-ANTHONY (ON SCREEN, AS TONY STARK)
Here's the thing, J. You're not here. I know you're not here. I left you at the bottom of the ocean. I'm talking to you anyway, so...

(a laugh that isn't a laugh)
...so that's where we're at.

He picks up the bottle. Holds it. Turns it in the light.

MARC-ANTHONY (ON SCREEN, AS TONY STARK) (CONT'D)
I used to think the suit made me Iron Man. Then I thought this did.

(holding up the bottle)
Turns out they're the same thing. Something to climb inside when I can't stand being in here.

(taps his own chest)
I've been drunk in that suit. I killed a man in that suit. And I'd give anything to have it back right now, because the suit would let me not feel this.

A long, long silence. He sets the bottle on the floor beside him. Doesn't open it. Doesn't move it away either.

MARC-ANTHONY (ON SCREEN, AS TONY STARK) (CONT'D)
(barely audible)
My name is Tony. And I'm an alcoholic.

IN THE AUDIENCE: One thousand people, and not one sound. Not a cough. Not a candy wrapper. In the third row, Natasha Bullock's hand slowly covers her mouth. Victor Donohue, beside her, is staring straight ahead with tears running down his face. He doesn't wipe them.

ON SCREEN: Tony reaches past the bottle and picks up the syringe.

CUT TO:

INT. EL CAPITAN THEATRE - AUDITORIUM - THE CLIMAX - LATER

SUPER: 8:41 P.M. PDT

ON SCREEN: Tony takes Extremis, just as he does in the comic, and it rewrites him from the inside: his nervous system, his bones, his blood. He wakes up in a cocoon of scabbed skin and sheds it like a snake. His mind plugs straight into every satellite, every phone, every machine on earth. He calls the remains of the Mark XLII out of the Pacific with a thought.

The audience ROARS for the first time in forty minutes. Fourteen of the seventeen minutes of armor are in this last act. Tony against Mallen on the Golden Gate Bridge. Rhodey in the War Machine armor taking down Mandarin soldiers on the decks of a real oil tanker. Pepper dragging a wounded Happy out of the wreckage.

And finally: Tony against the Mandarin himself, at the fortress in the Valley of Spirits. Ten rings against Extremis. Ice, flame, lightning, matter rearranged into a hurricane of blades. The Mark XLII is torn apart again, piece by piece. Tony fights the last thirty seconds bare-handed, in a burning jacket, and strips the rings from the Mandarin's fingers one by one.

IN THE AUDIENCE: People are on their feet. Don Cheadle shouts at his own face on the screen.

CUT TO:

INT. EL CAPITAN THEATRE - AUDITORIUM - THE ENDING - CONTINUOUS

SUPER: 8:58 P.M. PDT

ON SCREEN: Dawn over the ruins of the Malibu mansion. What's left of the cliff. Tony and Pepper sit on the broken edge of the foundation, legs dangling over the drop. Behind them, a final gift from Rhodey: every armor Tony has ever built, salvaged from the cave in the cliffside. Mark II through Mark XLI, forty suits, hovering over the Pacific in perfect rows like an honor guard. The rebuilt Mark XLII stands alone on the rocks below.

TAYIA (ON SCREEN, AS PEPPER)
Rhodey said the cave flooded but the suits didn't. He thought you'd want them back.

MARC-ANTHONY (ON SCREEN, AS TONY STARK)
Rhodey's a good friend.

(beat)
Rhodey doesn't know what they are.

TAYIA (ON SCREEN, AS PEPPER)
What are they?

MARC-ANTHONY (ON SCREEN, AS TONY STARK)
Forty-two bottles. Lined up on a shelf. Every one of them's a different way to not be in the room.

He raises his hand. The Extremis link flickers in his eyes, a pale blue.

MARC-ANTHONY (ON SCREEN, AS TONY STARK) (CONT'D)
Protocol Last Call.

The suits fire into the sky, one after another, and detonate in the dawn light like a fireworks show over the ocean. Red and gold, red and gold, forty-one times. The last to go is the Mark XLII. It rises from the rocks, turns to face him for one moment as if it were saying goodbye, and explodes.

IN THE AUDIENCE: A collective, horrified gasp. Somebody in the radio-contest section actually shouts "NO!" A hundred people grab the arms of their seats.

TAYIA (ON SCREEN, AS PEPPER)
(quietly)
So that's it? You're done?

MARC-ANTHONY (ON SCREEN, AS TONY STARK)
I'm sober. Twenty-one days. They give you a chip for thirty.

(beat)
I'm not done. I'm just not hiding anymore.

He stands and helps Pepper up. They walk away from the cliff together toward a dusty Audi on the road. The camera stays behind them.

Then, a close-up on Tony's right hand, swinging at his side. Under the skin of his wrist, for a fraction of a second, a thin ripple of red and gold, like metal moving through his veins. Then it's gone.

He opens his hand and the faint blue light flickers in his palm, the shape of a repulsor, then fades.

SMASH TO BLACK.

Title card: "TONY STARK WILL RETURN."

IN THE AUDIENCE: Pandemonium. Half the room is cheering. The other half is shouting questions at each other. "Did he just...?" "Is the armor INSIDE him?" "Did he retire?" "That's the Extremis undersuit! It's in his BONES!"

AMOND
(to Harmony, three seats from Marc-Anthony, stunned)
He blew up all his suits.

HARMONY
He blew up all his suits, and then his hand did the thing.

AMOND
What thing?

HARMONY
THE THING. Did you not see the thing?

Marc-Anthony, in the row ahead, turns around and puts a finger to his lips with a wicked grin.

MARC-ANTHONY
Credits. Nobody leaves.

CUT TO:

INT. EL CAPITAN THEATRE - AUDITORIUM - THE POST-CREDITS SCENE - NIGHT

SUPER: 9:09 P.M. PDT

The last credit rolls. The Paramount and Donohue logos fade. And then:

ON SCREEN: SAN FRANCISCO. PYM LABORATORIES. NIGHT. A cluttered lab filled with ant farms, tiny tools and half-built machines. A delivery crate stamped "STARK INDUSTRIES - DEBRIS RECOVERY - HANDLE WITH CARE" sits open on the workbench.

HANK PYM (David Tipton) lifts a scorched, fist-sized object out of the packing foam: the onboard combat processor from a destroyed Iron Man armor.

Tucked inside the lid, a handwritten note. He reads it out loud.

DAVID (ON SCREEN, AS HANK PYM)
"Hank. Forty-two suits' worth of combat logs. Every fight. Every mistake. You said your robot needed experience. Make it better than me. Don't make it LIKE me. - T."

JANET VAN DYNE (Elxa Bullock) leans in the doorway, eating cereal out of the box.

ELXA (ON SCREEN, AS JANET)
Tony sent you his garbage?

DAVID (ON SCREEN, AS HANK PYM)
Tony sent me his conscience. It's the same thing with Tony.

He turns to a whiteboard covered in equations. On a stand beside it is a small, crude robot, no taller than a fire hydrant, with an antenna on its head and a gaping mouth grille. Hank opens a leather notebook to its first page. In his neat handwriting at the top, a single word:

"ULTRON."

Under it: "Neural template: H. PYM. Combat data: T. STARK. Purpose: Protect."

ELXA (ON SCREEN, AS JANET)
You're putting your own brain in a robot?

DAVID (ON SCREEN, AS HANK PYM)
(smiling, switching off the lamp)
Just the good parts.

They leave. The door closes. The lab goes dark.

Hold on the little robot in the dark. A long, silent beat.

Then, deep inside the mouth grille, a single red light flickers on.

SMASH TO BLACK.

Title card: "THE AVENGERS WILL RETURN."

IN THE AUDIENCE: A sound unlike anything the El Capitan has heard since the Thanos turn. Grown men SCREAM. Grace Bullock jumps up so fast she knocks Elijah's popcorn into the row in front. Tyrese Avery has both hands on top of his head.

ELIJAH
(popcorn in his hair, shouting)
ULTRON! HANK BUILDS ULTRON! IT'S AVENGERS #54!

GRACE
(grabbing his arm)
THAT'S WHAT FEIGE MEANT AT COMIC-CON!

Down the row, David Tipton slowly turns around in his seat and holds up a single kernel of popcorn to the SuperheroHype reporter, three rows back.

DAVID
Layered butter.

She throws her notepad at him.

CUT TO:

PART TWO: THE AFTER-PARTY

EXT. HOLLYWOOD AND HIGHLAND - ROOFTOP TERRACE - NIGHT

SUPER: WEDNESDAY, APRIL 24, 2013 - 11:15 P.M. PDT

The after-party fills a rooftop above the boulevard. A jazz band plays a slow version of "Iron Man" by Black Sabbath. Champagne flows everywhere, except at one table: a bar the production quietly set up serving only club soda, ginger ale and espresso. Above it, a small sign: "LAST CALL BAR - SOBER AND PROUD."

Marc-Anthony is there, ordering a ginger ale. Ben Kingsley appears at his elbow, the ten rings now in a velvet pouch in his breast pocket.

BEN KINGSLEY
The bathroom. I watched it from the back of the cinema. I have done a great deal of Shakespeare, young man. That was Shakespeare.

MARC-ANTHONY
(genuinely floored)
Sir Ben. You can't say things like that to me. I'll get a big head and Pepper will have to talk me down.

BEN KINGSLEY
A big head is permitted. A big ego is not. You have the first. I have seen no evidence of the second.

Kingsley clinks his champagne flute against the ginger ale and moves on. Across the terrace, Natasha watches her son. She crosses to him, glass of white wine in hand. A beat. Then she sets the wine down on the bar and picks up a ginger ale instead.

NATASHA
Your grandfather cried.

MARC-ANTHONY
I saw.

NATASHA
He hasn't cried in a theater in my lifetime.

(a pause)
I'm keeping the seventeen minutes and forty seconds. I'm putting it in my speech to the board. "The movie we were afraid of."

MARC-ANTHONY
Is that you saying you were wrong?

NATASHA
(sipping the ginger ale, grimacing)
It's me saying I'm drinking ginger ale. Don't push it.

She squeezes his hand. Then she's gone, back into the crowd, already on her phone. Marc-Anthony laughs to himself.

EXT. ROOFTOP TERRACE - THE FAR CORNER - CONTINUOUS

SUPER: 11:32 P.M. PDT

At the edge of the terrace, away from the band, Amond and Harmony lean against the railing, looking at the lights of the boulevard. She's barefoot, heels in one hand.

HARMONY
Two hundred photographers.

AMOND
Two hundred and twelve. I counted when you fixed my tie.

HARMONY
It'll be online by midnight.

AMOND
It's online already. Tyler sent it to me. The headline says "JUST FRIENDS?" with a question mark the size of a car.

Harmony is quiet. She looks down at the street, then back at him.

HARMONY
I've been saying "just friends" since 2009.

AMOND
I know. I was there. Every time.

HARMONY
It's been true for exactly none of the last ten weeks.

(beat)
Let them have the question mark. For now. I'm not ready for the whole world yet. I just wanted you to know I'm not ashamed of it.

Amond takes her free hand. He doesn't say anything at all. For once in his life, Amond Baker doesn't say a word. That's how she knows he means it.

Behind them, unnoticed, Marc-Anthony and Esther watch from the bar. Esther slaps his arm before he can open his mouth.

ESTHER
Don't.

MARC-ANTHONY
I wasn't going to.

ESTHER
You were going to yell "FINALLY" across the roof.

MARC-ANTHONY
(beat)
I was going to yell it quietly.

CUT TO:

TMZ.COM - THURSDAY, APRIL 25, 2013, 12:04 AM PT

HULK AND BLACK WIDOW: 'JUST FRIENDS'? THE BOW TIE SAYS OTHERWISE

Amond Baker and Harmony Divine arrived at the "Iron Man 3" premiere in the same car, walked the carpet three feet apart, and then she fixed his tie in front of 200 photographers. Body language experts we consulted say: "Nobody fixes a 'friend's' tie like that." Reps for both actors did not respond.

PART THREE: THE WORLD SEES IT

DEADLINE.COM - SUNDAY, APRIL 28, 2013, 9:15 AM PT

'IRON MAN 3' OPENS TO $203.1M OVERSEAS, BIGGEST INTERNATIONAL BOW EVER FOR A MARVEL FILM; DOMESTIC DEBUT STILL A WEEK AWAY

Donohue's IRON MAN 3 grossed an estimated $203.1 million from 42 markets, with the U.K., South Korea, Australia, Mexico and Brazil leading the way. Exit polling shows audiences sharply divided on the ending, with many leaving theaters debating whether Tony Stark has retired. "Divided is good," says one rival distribution chief. "Divided means they're coming back to see it again."

REDDIT.COM - r/marvelstudios - "[INTERNATIONAL SPOILERS] IRON MAN 3 DISCUSSION - THE ENDING" - 18,442 comments

u/SilverCenturion85 (London, Apr 25, 9:41 PM BST)
He blew up the SILVER CENTURION. He blew up the stealth armor. He blew up the HULKBUSTER. Forty-one suits. I was literally on my feet shouting at the screen in Leicester Square.

u/ExtremisExplained (Sydney, Apr 25, 11:10 PM AEST)
People asking "did he retire," NO. Watch his wrist. In the EXTREMIS comic (2005-06), Tony stores the undersheath of the armor INSIDE his bones. The suits are obsolete. He's not quitting. He IS the armor now.

u/NoNerfsPlz (Seoul, Apr 26, 1:33 AM KST)
They kept the comic's Killian death AND the comic's Mallen. And Tony got destroyed in the first fight like in issue 3. Fully comic-accurate. The ONLY change is that they combined it with Demon in a Bottle, and honestly it's the best combination in comics movie history.

u/hulk_doesnt_read (Mexico City, Apr 26, 2:02 AM CDT) the post credits. ULTRON. "neural template: H. PYM." the guy at Comic-Con who said "try Avengers 54" was telling us this. a year ago. Feige is a demon.

u/MadTitanFan (Sao Paulo, Apr 26, 3:20 AM BRT)
i went in for armor. i got 17 minutes of armor and the best four minutes of acting i've ever seen in a superhero movie. i can't stop thinking about the bathroom.

YOUTUBE.COM - "IRON MAN 3 - EVERY SECOND TONY IS IN THE ARMOR (17:40)" - uploaded by suitup_supercuts - 6,104,288 views in 5 days

Description: someone on twitter said "he's in the suit for like 15 minutes." i timed it frame by frame from a camcorder bootleg (don't come for me, i deleted it). it's 17:40. 14:02 of it is in the last act. i still left happy. go see it legally.

EXT. AMC UNIVERSAL CITYWALK 19 WITH IMAX - LINE - NIGHT

SUPER: THURSDAY, MAY 2, 2013 - 8:20 P.M. PDT - FIRST NORTH AMERICAN SHOWS

The same IMAX theater. The same four friends, in the same front-row spots on the line, now in new homemade T-shirts. Each shirt shows a cardboard arc reactor and the words "THE MAN, NOT THE MACHINE."

GARY MORRIS (47), DR. PRIYA SHAH (28), DARNELL JOHNSON (35), TOMMY RUIZ (25). Gary is holding a laminated index card.

TOMMY
Gary. Is that apology 215? You laminated an apology?

GARY
I laminated a DRAFT. I'm keeping my options open. The international people say the ending is divisive. If he quits being Iron Man, I don't apologize. I riot.

PRIYA
You won't riot.

GARY
I'll riot politely. I'll write a strongly worded post.

DARNELL
You have written four hundred strongly worded posts since 2006 and every single one of them ended with an apology.

GARY
(beat)
...And those were good apologies. I stand by them.

A theater employee in a red vest opens the doors.

THEATER EMPLOYEE
Nine o'clock IRON MAN 3, IMAX! Phones away! No spoilers in the lobby, the international people have been ruining it for a week!

CUT TO:

INT. AMC UNIVERSAL CITYWALK - IMAX AUDITORIUM - LATER

SUPER: THURSDAY, MAY 2, 2013 - 11:07 P.M. PDT

On screen: the suits explode over the Pacific. Gary is half out of his seat.

GARY
(to the screen, anguished)
No. No no no. Not the Silver Centurion. Not the Silver Cent...

On screen: the ripple of red and gold under Tony's skin. The blue light in his palm.

PRIYA
(grabbing Gary's arm, whispering hard)
THE UNDERSHEATH. GARY. IT'S IN HIS BONES. EXTREMIS NUMBER SIX.

Gary sinks back into his seat. His mouth opens. Closes. He reaches into his jacket pocket and takes out the laminated card.

GARY
(quietly)
He didn't quit. He doesn't need them anymore.

DARNELL
"I'm not done. I'm just not hiding anymore."

Gary nods slowly, his eyes on the screen as the title card reads "TONY STARK WILL RETURN."

GARY
Two hundred and fifteen.

He hands the card to Priya without looking at it. She reads it, smiles, and puts it in her bag.

Then the post-credits scene starts. The crate. The note. The notebook. The word "ULTRON." The red light in the dark.

Tommy doesn't scream. He stands up, turns to face the entire IMAX theater, and spreads his arms.

TOMMY
(shouting to three hundred strangers)
AVENGERS NUMBER FIFTY-FOUR! I TOLD YOU! I TOLD ALL OF YOU! THE ROBOT HAS HANK'S BRAIN!

Three hundred strangers cheer him like he scored the winning goal.

CUT TO:

TWITTER.COM - TRENDING TOPICS (WORLDWIDE) - FRIDAY, MAY 3, 2013

#IronMan3 - #LastCall - Ultron - 17:40 - Extremis - Hank Pym - The Bathroom Scene - Silver Centurion

TWITTER.COM - PUBLIC TIMELINE

marcanthonyb: to everyone asking if tony retired: he blew up 42 suits and his hand glowed. you do the math. i'm an actor. i can't do math. 12:15 AM May 3rd from Twitter for iPhone esthersmilley: the man i'm marrying sat on a bathroom floor for four minutes and made a thousand people forget to breathe. i'm so proud of you. also our daughter walked toward your face on E! so you're winning at everything this week 12:40 AM May 3rd from Twitter for iPhone tayiaboyd: pepper potts doesn't need a suit either. just saying. 1:05 AM May 3rd from Twitter for iPhone davidtipton: the popcorn really is buttered in layers. that's all i'll say. 1:30 AM May 3rd from Twitter for iPhone amondbaker: i was not told about ultron. once again, NOBODY TELLS ME ANYTHING. i've never been more trustworthy and it's still not enough 1:44 AM May 3rd from Twitter for iPhone priya_shah_phd: filed apology 215 on behalf of my friend gary, who is still sitting in the IMAX theater staring at the screen. we may need to go back in and get him 1:58 AM May 3rd from Twitter for iPhone

ShellHead1963: #215: I said Iron Man needed to be in the suit. I was wrong. Iron Man was never the suit. 2:10 AM May 3rd from Twitter for Android

TUMBLR - REBLOGGED 412,880 TIMES - "LAST CALL BAR"

Picture: a phone photo of the small sign at the after-party: "LAST CALL BAR - SOBER AND PROUD."

Caption: "Marvel set up a sober bar at the IRON MAN 3 after-party. I'm 6 years sober. I saw this and cried in a Starbucks. Representation isn't just about who's in the suit."

SUPERHEROHYPE.COM - THREAD: "IM3 MEGATHREAD (SPOILERS!!)" (Page 1,904 of 1,904)

Gamma_Gamma_Hey (May 3, 9:22 AM)
Honest question for the people mad about the suit time: what was your favorite scene? Because everyone I talk to says the bathroom, the Mallen fight, or the suits exploding. Not one of those is an armor fight.

SilverAge_Sally (May 3, 9:40 AM)
I'm one of the angry ones. I wanted the Hulkbuster versus the Mandarin. BUT. I've been to AA for 11 years. When he said "my name is Tony," I had to leave the theater for a minute. I'll be back Saturday to see it again.

WakandaWatcher (May 3, 10:05 AM)
My dad is a Vietnam vet. 30 years sober. He doesn't do superhero movies. I took him last night. He didn't say anything in the car. At home he went in the garage and came back with his 30-year chip and put it on the kitchen table and said "that's a real one." That's all he said.

ShellHead1963 (May 3, 10:30 AM)
I just read that and I have nothing funny to say. Thank you for sharing that.

PART FOUR: THE NUMBER

INT. MARC-ANTHONY AND ESTHER'S HOUSE - KITCHEN - LOS FELIZ - MORNING

SUPER: SUNDAY, MAY 5, 2013 - 8:40 A.M. PDT

Sunday chaos. Esther feeds Emma oatmeal. Victoria, now unstoppable, toddles laps around the kitchen island. Marc-Anthony is making pancakes shaped like arc reactors and failing badly. They look like blobs.

His phone buzzes on the counter. "FEIGE." He puts him on speaker.

FEIGE (V.O.)
Are you sitting down?

MARC-ANTHONY
I'm holding a spatula. Victoria's sitting down. She's the only one.

FEIGE (V.O.)
Friday: seventy-one point six, including sixteen point two from Thursday night. Saturday: fifty-four point eight. Sunday's estimated at fifty-five point three. That's a hundred and eighty-one point seven million dollars domestic. The second-biggest opening weekend of all time, behind THE AVENGERS.

Esther drops the oatmeal spoon. Emma is thrilled.

FEIGE (V.O.) (CONT'D)
And with the international numbers, the worldwide total is seven hundred and eleven point four million dollars. After twelve days.

MARC-ANTHONY
(setting the spatula down)
Kevin. Iron Man 2 finished at...

FEIGE (V.O.)
Six fifty-seven. The first one did six-eleven. IRON MAN 3 passed both of them on Saturday night. It's the biggest Iron Man movie ever, it's going to pass a billion dollars, and it did it with seventeen minutes and forty seconds of armor.

Silence in the kitchen. Then Esther starts laughing. Then Marc-Anthony. Then Emma, because everybody else is.

FEIGE (V.O.) (CONT'D)
Your mother called me at six this morning. She said, and I quote, "Tell Hasbro I want the boxed set to say 'The Movie We Were Afraid Of' on the side."

MARC-ANTHONY
That's not going to fit on the box.

FEIGE (V.O.)
That's what I said. She said, "Make a bigger box."

CUT TO:

DEADLINE.COM - SUNDAY, MAY 5, 2013, 9:30 AM PT

'IRON MAN 3' BLASTS OFF WITH $181.7M, SECOND-BEST DOMESTIC OPENING EVER; WORLDWIDE CUME $711.4M, ALREADY TOPS ENTIRE RUNS OF 'IRON MAN' AND 'IRON MAN 2'

CinemaScore: A. The Shane Black-directed film is now the biggest solo superhero opening in history. Donohue's distribution chief credits "the conversation" around the ending and the post-credits Ultron reveal: "People walked out arguing. Arguments sell tickets."

THE NEW YORK TIMES - ARTS - MONDAY, MAY 6, 2013

IRON MAN, WITHOUT THE IRON

"For seven years Hollywood has assumed audiences pay for spectacle. IRON MAN 3, which keeps its billionaire hero out of his armor for all but 17 minutes, suggests something stranger: that they will pay, in record numbers, to watch a man sit on a bathroom floor and decide not to drink. Addiction counselors in Los Angeles, New York and Chicago told The Times they have heard from new callers who cited the film by name."

THE HOLLYWOOD REPORTER - MONDAY, MAY 6, 2013

"THE MOVIE WE WERE AFRAID OF": INSIDE DONOHUE'S FIGHT OVER IRON MAN 3'S ARMOR

Sources say Natasha Bullock personally timed the film's armor with a stopwatch at a March screening and pushed for more suit action before agreeing to the cut. "She told the board she was wrong," says one person in the room. "Nobody in that building has ever heard her say that sentence." Toy analysts say the "Last Call" boxed set has sold out at Target nationwide.

VARIETY - MONDAY, MAY 6, 2013

OSCAR TALK FOR A SUPERHERO? 'IRON MAN 3' BATHROOM SCENE SPARKS AWARDS CHATTER FOR BULLOCK

"It's May. Ask me in December," one Academy member said. "But that scene is the best four minutes of screen acting I've seen this year, and I've seen everything at Sundance."

ENTERTAINMENT WEEKLY - COVER (Issue of May 17, 2013)

ULTRON IS COMING

Hank Pym. A notebook. A red light in the dark. Inside the post-credits scene that has the whole world counting down to AVENGERS 2, and the question Marvel still won't answer: did Tony Stark just put the armor INSIDE himself?

JET MAGAZINE - (Issue of May 20, 2013)

FIVE STEPS

While Marc-Anthony Bullock walked the IRON MAN 3 red carpet, his 11-month-old daughter Victoria walked for the first time, straight toward his face on TV. Her grandfather, Desmond Smilley, filmed it. "He sent it to both of us," Esther Smilley says. "He signed it with his initials. In this family, that's a peace treaty."

EPILOGUE: THE FOUR HUNDRED AND FIRST LETTER

INT. MARC-ANTHONY AND ESTHER'S HOUSE - KITCHEN - LOS FELIZ - NIGHT

SUPER: MONDAY, MAY 6, 2013 - 11:48 P.M. PDT

The house is asleep. One light on over the kitchen island. Marc-Anthony sits there in a T-shirt with an old shoebox in front of him, its corners soft with age. On the lid, in his own teenage handwriting: "LETTERS - 2001."

Four hundred envelopes inside, every one opened and read and kept.

Beside the shoebox: a single new envelope, forwarded from the Marvel fan-mail office. Postmarked Dayton, Ohio. Inside, a letter and a small bronze coin.

Esther pads in, wrapped in his robe, and sits beside him without a word. He hands her the letter. She reads it out loud, very softly.

ESTHER
(reading)
"Dear Marc-Anthony. You won't remember me. In 2001 I wrote to you about your episode of EVEN STEVENS, the one where Trey's father drinks. They cut it short, but I saw it. I poured my bottle out during the commercial break. I was 34."

Marc-Anthony closes his eyes.

ESTHER (CONT'D)
(reading)
"I went to see your new movie on Saturday with my son. He's 19. He didn't know about me back then. When Tony sat on the floor and said his name, my son took my hand in the dark. Afterward I told him everything. Twelve years. Here's my twelve-year coin. I'd like you to have it. You gave me the first day. Your friend, Raymond."

Esther sets the letter down. She picks up the coin and puts it in his palm, closing his fingers around it.

ESTHER (CONT'D)
The guy from Ohio.

MARC-ANTHONY
(barely able to speak)
The guy from Ohio.

He opens the shoebox and slowly, carefully, puts the new letter in with the four hundred others. The four hundred and first. He puts the coin on top.

MARC-ANTHONY (CONT'D)
My mom wanted me in the suit.

ESTHER
I know.

MARC-ANTHONY
Seventeen minutes and forty seconds.

(beat, he laughs through tears)
It turns out that's all Iron Man ever needed.

Esther rests her head on his shoulder. Down the hall, one of the girls stirs and sighs and falls back asleep.

He closes the shoebox lid.

FADE OUT.

HEADLINES

SUPER: MONDAY, MAY 13, 2013

BOX OFFICE MOJO - WEEKEND OF MAY 10-12, 2013

1. IRON MAN 3 (Donohue) - $74.6M weekend - $283.7M domestic - $949.8M worldwide (Day 19 international / Day 10 domestic)

Analysts expect the film to cross $1 billion worldwide by Wednesday, the second Marvel Studios film to do so after THE AVENGERS.

DEADLINE.COM - WEDNESDAY, MAY 15, 2013

'IRON MAN 3' CROSSES $1 BILLION WORLDWIDE; TRILOGY NOW TOPS $2.27B

PEOPLE.COM - MONDAY, MAY 13, 2013

DESMOND SMILLEY ON GRANDDAUGHTER'S FIRST STEPS: "I COUNTED FIVE"

In a rare comment through a spokesperson, the Smilley Management Group founder said only: "She walked to her father. I counted five steps." Sources say Smilley and his wife, Celeste, attended the twins' first birthday party in Los Feliz on Friday, May 10, and that he stayed until the cake was gone.

TWITTER.COM - PUBLIC TIMELINE

NoNerfsPlz: hank's notebook said "Purpose: Protect." in the comics ultron hates his father more than anything in the universe. marvel is about to break my heart in 2015, i can feel it 9:41 AM May 13th from Twitter for iPhone

FADE OUT.

END OF CHAPTER SEVENTEEN